Maine Attraction

I've been vacationing in Maine ever since my single days, but now that I'm a mom of an active 3-year-old, I need a vacation spot that appeals to kids-and is still adult-friendly. The Sebasco Harbor Resort is perfect because it's all about family, fun, and seafood. A hybrid of sorts, it's part rustic family camp, part luxury resort: You can rent a small cottage and play candlepin bowling at the rec center or stay in the fancy deluxe quarters and treat yourselves to massages at the spa.

The resort makes planning your day super easy. Each morning there's a printout of activities-everything from pirate treasure hunts to a sea-life exploration walk with a naturalist. My little city kid, Will, was in awe as he dug for razor clams, chased hermit crabs, and carefully held snails in his tiny palm.
