THE NEW YORK TIMES RECOGNIZES SEBASCO HARBOR RESORT FOR ITS BUCOLIC VIEW, HIGH-END RESTAURANT AND ACTIVITIES

Pure Maine Resort "Continues to Woo Guests" According to Charles Passy of The Times

Sebasco Estates, Maine (September 10, 2008) - Sebasco Harbor Resort, a vacation destination of over 550 acres on the rocky mid-coast of Maine, was featured in the Sunday, September 7 issue of The New York Times. In the "Check In, Check Out" column, Times travel reporter Charles Passy lauded Sebasco for its "untouched-by-time waterfront setting" and also its "appeal to more contemporary-minded vacationers, with updated lodgings, a high-end restaurant, and activities like weekly wine tastings."

"We're very pleased to be recognized by The New York Times," said Bob Smith, proprietor and official Lighthouse Keeper at Sebasco Harbor Resort. "It's exciting for us to receive Sebasco and Maine related coverage in The Times, and Mr. Passy was very comprehensive in his assessment of us."

The "Check In, Check Out" review referenced Sebasco's historic beginnings and activities that bring back "pleasures of yesteryear," such as lobster bakes to candlepin bowling. However, it also included Sebasco's contemporary minded upgrades, all part of a $12 million overhaul including the Fairwinds spa, updated cottages, and smartly decorated apartment-style rooms. And while Mr. Passy chose a value-priced Internet special room for his accommodation that is slated to be updated later this Fall, he noted that the view "couldn't have been more bucolic" and that Sebasco does offer a variety of lodgings, particularly updated and more upscale rooms.

The New York Times has a Sunday circulation of 1.4 million. Sebasco Harbor Resort was also recently featured in Parents, Boston Magazine, Boston Globe, Miami Herald, Country Living, Cosmopolitan, and AAA Car & Travel Magazine.
